

Doing business in China

In the not too distant future China is predicted to become the world's largest economy. Its huge population and fast growing affluence makes it a market no ambitious business should ignore, yet it is so different from the western markets most businesses are familiar with.

As a leading law firm, Lester Aldridge is heavily involved in advising clients on cross border matters and international trade and is a member of MSI, a global alliance of independent legal and accounting firms.

LA is pleased to invite you to attend a seminar which will examine the various technicalities and etiquette of doing business in China. David Ashplant, head of the Commercial Law team at LA, will outline how LA advises clients on their international business working closely with fellow MSI member firms in other countries.

LA is delighted to welcome Russell Brown, managing partner of LehmanBrown, to speak about doing business in China. LehmanBrown is a leading China focused accounting, taxation and business advisory firm and fellow member of MSI with offices in Beijing and across China. Russell Brown has spent the last 18 years working in China, and is a fellow of the Chartered Institute of Management Accountants and an Associate of the Accounting Institute of England and Wales.
